2023 Year End Payroll Information

It is important to remember that wages are not limited to salary but include other payments that are actually or constructively paid to an employee. The following is a listing of some of the more common payment arrangements that may need to be included as wages and reported on an employee's Form W-2.

Bonuses

Whether paid in cash or otherwise, bonuses are supplemental wages subject to income tax withholding, social security, Medicare, FUTA, SUI and Tri-Met unless they are non-cash gifts of minimal value. Please note that gift certificates are considered cash and thus are treated the same as a cash bonus.

Awards and Prizes

When given to an employee as a result of the employee's performance on the job, awards and prizes are generally subject to income tax withholding, social security, Medicare, FUTA, SUI and Tri-Met whether they are cash or non-cash.

However, if a non-cash award is given to an employee for length of service or safety achievement, and is awarded as part of a meaningful presentation, the value can be excluded from the employee's income. The most that can be excluded for the cost of all employee achievement awards to the same employee for the year is $400. A higher limit of $1,600 may apply in certain circumstances under a written qualified plan.

Personal Use of a Company-Owned Vehicle or Airplane

This is considered a fringe benefit that is includible in an employee's wages, and is subject to income tax withholding, social security, Medicare, FUTA, SUI and Tri-Met. However, the employer may elect not to withhold income taxes when a written notice is given to the employee. We can provide you with the forms necessary to calculate the value of this fringe benefit, or we can perform the calculation for you.

Group Life Insurance

The value of group-term life insurance coverage in excess of $50,000 is includible as wages and is subject only to social security and Medicare taxes, but not FUTA, SUI, Tri-Met or income tax withholding. If this situation applies to you, please contact us for the information necessary to determine the amount to be included in an employee's taxable income.

Health Insurance or Disability Premiums

For S corporations paying health insurance, including long-term care and Medicare premiums, and/or accident disability premiums on behalf of a shareholder-employee who owns more than two percent of the corporation's stock, the premiums must be added to the shareholder's taxable wages. This amount is not subject to social security, Medicare, FUTA or SUI but is subject to income tax withholding and Tri-Met.

Note Adjustments may also need to be made to an employee's Form W-2 for certain benefit programs. Two of the most common are discussed below.

Retirement Plans

Retirement plan deferral rules and limitations vary depending on the plan. Employee salary reduction arrangements (SAR-SEP), SIMPLE plan deferrals, and non-Roth 401(k) deferrals are subject to social security, Medicare, FUTA, SUI and Tri-Met taxes, but are excluded from an employee's taxable income and are exempt from income tax withholding. The maximum annual elective deferral limitations for the following types of retirement plans are:

	2023	2024
401(k) and SAR-SEP	$ 22,500	$ 23,000
Catch-up provision if 50 or older	$ 7,500	$ 7,500
SIMPLE IRA	$ 15,500	$ 16,000
Catch-up provision if 50 or older	$ 3,500	$ 3,500

Cafeteria Plans

Cafeteria plans are benefit plans under which employees can choose among cash and certain qualified benefits. Generally, qualified benefits under a cafeteria plan are not subject to social security, Medicare, FUTA, or income tax withholding. However, if an employee elects to receive cash instead of any qualified benefits, the cash is treated as wages subject to all employment and income taxes. The items listed are by no means all-inclusive of the numerous payment and benefit arrangements practiced today. If you have any special arrangements with your employees and are concerned about how to report them, we would be glad to assist you.

Income Tax Withholdings (Federal & State)

Federal income tax withholding tables are no longer included in Publication 15 (Circular E), Employer's Tax Guide. These tables and the employer instructions on how to figure employee withholding are now included in Publication 15-T, Federal Income Tax Withholding Methods. The Oregon withholding tables issued in December 2023 should be used for 2024. All Oregon withholding changes need to be made using Form OR-W-4.

Non-payroll Income Tax Withholding

Income tax withheld during 2023 on non-payroll items such as retirement distributions, must be reported on Form 945, Annual Return of Withheld Federal Income Tax. This return is due January 31, 2024.

SUI (State Unemployment Tax)

You should have been notified by the Oregon Department of Revenue of your state unemployment tax rate for 2024. If you have retained a payroll service to process your payroll, make sure you notify them of your new tax rate.

	2023	2024
SUI wage base	$ 50,900	$52,800

Workers' Compensation Assessment

Workers' compensation expense is made up of two components: the hourly assessment and the insurance coverage. Only the hourly assessment is reported on the Oregon Quarterly Combined Tax Report (Form OQ). The insurance coverage is still paid to your private insurance company. If hours are not tracked, employers may calculate total hours using 173.33 hours per month or 40 hours per week, prorated for part-time workers.

	2023	2024
Workers' comp assessment	$.022	$.020
SUI percentage	$.011	$.010
Taxable base tax rate (new employer rate)	$.011	$.010

Statewide Transit Tax

Oregon imposes a statewide transit payroll tax of .1% on the wages of employees who are:

- Residents of Oregon; or
- Nonresidents performing services in Oregon.

If you fail to withhold this tax, the law imposes a penalty of $250 per employee, with a maximum penalty of $25,000 and you will be responsible for paying the tax. Residents of Oregon subject to the tax who earn wages outside Oregon will be responsible for paying the tax.

New Hire Reporting Requirements

You must complete and keep for your records, federal Form I-9, Employment Eligibility Verification Form, for each new employee you hire. The form is issued by U.S. Citizenship and Immigration Services to confirm that the employee is legally qualified to work in the United States. Employers are entitled to ask for and copy the necessary documents as outlined in Form I-9. Employers must examine the employment eligibility and identity document(s) an employee presents to determine whether the document(s) reasonably appear to be genuine and related to the individual, and record the document information on Form I-9.

For Oregon, the name, address, and social security number of newly hired and rehired employees are required to be reported within 20 days to the Division of Child Support by mailing Oregon Employer New Hire Reporting Form, or a similar list, to Employer Services, Division of Child Support, Oregon Department of Justice, PO Box 14680, Salem, OR 97309. Be sure to include your company name, address, and federal tax identification number. You may also fax the required information to 877-877-7415 or use the Oregon Employer Services Portal (recommended). Most payroll tax services will automatically file the necessary information, but employers should confirm that this service is provided.

Due to Oregon legislation passed in 2023, employers will need to include independent contractors in their reports to the Division of Child Support. Starting January 1, 2024, reporting must include independent contractors who complete an IRS Form W-9 and work for more than 20 days, if they are hired or rehired following a break of 60 days or more. If you're using a third-party payroll service, we recommend looking into their contractor management features. They might offer services to fulfill this reporting requirement for you.

Electronic Deposit Requirement

If you make payroll tax liability deposits in any manner other than paying them with the quarterly return, you are required to deposit them electronically through EFTPS. You will need to sign up for EFTPS. It's easy and it's free. To enroll in EFTPS, complete the application online at www.eftps.gov. We would be glad to assist you with enrollment and answer any questions you may have regarding EFTPS.

Wage & Tax Statements (Forms W-2 & W-3)

The completed 2023 Forms W-2 must be distributed to your employees by January 31, 2024. Failure to do so by this date may result in a $60 to $310 penalty per W-2, depending on when filed. Penalties can increase to $630 per return with no annual cap for intentional disregard of these filing requirements. Copies of Forms W-2 and the related transmittal Form W-3 must also be sent to the Social Security Administration by January 31, 2024. A single 30-day extension to file Forms W-2 is available but is not automatic.

All Oregon businesses are required to electronically transmit their 2023 W-2 information to the Oregon Department of Revenue. If you use a third-party payroll provider, they should be electronically filing for you and there should be nothing further you need to do. If you are using QuickBooks payroll, please note that not all versions of QuickBooks payroll will take care of this requirement. You need to confirm that your subscription includes electronic filing of Oregon Forms W-2. The Oregon Annual Withholding Tax Reconciliation Report (Form OR-WR) must be filed with the Oregon Department of Revenue on or before January 31, 2024.

If you process your own payroll or use certain versions of QuickBooks payroll, please visit the Oregon Department of Revenue iWire portal to electronically file your Forms W-2 with Oregon on or before January 31, 2024.

Annual Information Returns (Forms 1099)

Forms 1099, reporting certain interest, rent, royalties, etc., must be distributed to the payees by January 31, 2024. Copies of Forms 1099-NEC reporting any nonemployee compensation and the related transmittal, Form 1096, must also be filed by January 31, 2024, whether by paper or electronically. Copies of Forms 1099 reporting amounts other than non-employee compensation must be filed by February 28, 2024. If filed electronically, the due date is March 31, 2024. Failure to do so by this date may result in a $60 to $310 penalty per return, depending on when filed. Penalties can increase to $630 per return with no annual cap for intentional disregard of these filing requirements.

Starting this year, the IRS has reduced the 1099 electronic filing threshold from 250 per form type to 10 returns in total (including 941, 940, W-2, 1099, and any federal tax returns filed). In addition to the two free options offered by the IRS (FIRE System and IRIS), there are many popular paid services, including Tax1099.com, which is known for its partnership with Intuit's QuickBooks. If you are filing Forms 1099 for your company, we encourage you to research all available options for the best fit for you.

Request, Receipt, and Maintaining Forms W-9

Individuals and entities that are required to file information returns must also request, receive, and maintain records of the received Forms W-9. If the individual or entity fails to provide the requested W-9 they may be subject to a penalty of $50, and the requester should immediately begin backup withholding and remit to the IRS. In addition, the requester of the Taxpayer Identification Number (TIN) should make 3 solicited attempts to obtain the requested information to avoid penalties for failing to include the TIN on the information return.

The following listing of Forms 1099 and their requirements is not all-inclusive but is a summary of the most common filings.
